

I Have To Wonder

Why do liberals hate Israel and love, love, love Cuba? They jump up and down like the proverbial poo-flinging monkey and cry about "Palestinians" being oppressed, and applaud little boys named Elian being sent at gunpoint back into slavery.

Why do they condemn a vital democracy that is surrounded by theocratic regimes? What is it about dictators like Hugo Chavez that sends a thrill down their legs? I have made many excursions into analyzing the perverse thought processes of the liberal mind, and there always seems to be one common thread.

Liberals really hate America.

And because they hate America, they are compelled towards America's antithesis, regardless of how heinous the regime. It's cool to wear a t-shirt with the face of mass murdering psychopath Che on it, because he's anti-American. You have to hate Israel, because it's a functioning democracy that America supports. The USSR wasn't so bad, and that dotard Reagan didn't really contribute to it's collapse. It dissolved because they felt they were doing the right thing.

You really have to stand in awe of the psychology of the liberal mind. It can be presented with the serial lies Barack Obama has told it, and declaim "But Bush..." without batting a synapse. You see, Bush reminded them of America, the real America they hate so venemously. Obama is an international kind of guy.

So we can ignore Iran executing political dissidents, because they're not Israel. We can ignore Saudi Arabia imprisoning rape victims, because they're not Israel. Shiites blowing up Sunnis in Iraq? Well, they aren't Jews, thank Gaia. Besides, it's all Bush's fault, and at least they aren't Israel.

Israel is the root of all the problems in the Middle East, and America is the root of all the problems in the world. Haven't you read The People's History of America?
